FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 25.

Will there be any Democratic Insurgents in the next House of Representatives?

It is about as much as Kentucky can do to stand one governor at a time, much less thirty or forty.

That rooster, which the Herald acknowledges it had some difficulty in resurrecting, is too far behind the times to stay.

Col. Watters, is still of the opinion that prohibition does not prohibit and that no Democrat can be a prohibitionist.

Let the tariff smashing proceed along the lines laid down by Democracy and the Insurgents. The voters will learn better when supper time comes.

The roads of Ohio County are still being placed in first class condition and this time next year everybody will be happy and in love with the new system.

We suggest that Louisville, having been refused a census account by the authorities of Washington, bring the matter before the Law and Order League of that city.

More than 1,200 Republicans failed to vote in the election in Ohio County November 8th. This is no sign that they will not vote next year, however. Our Democratic friends may stick a pin here.

It was not unpopularity of time tried Republican principles which caused defeat at the recent election. It was rather turning away from them who should have stood firm. Time will prove this to be true.

Is this the South Trimble who is mentioned for Clerk of the next House of Representatives, the same South Trimble who once wrote a letter to one Ben Marshall advising him not to serve on the election commission for Franklin County?

Governor-elect Foss, of Massachusetts, has developed into a first class boss. In going so far as to demand of Senator Lodge then he decline to be a candidate for re-election he has gone further than even ex-president Roosevelt ever did in directing men and affairs.

Senator Stone of Missouri has made a suggestion which ought to appeal to the Republican Insurgents. He proposes that they unite with the Democrats in controlling the United States Senate. We see no reason why they should not. They are in perfect accord with all Democracy stands for.

"The one truth taught by the late election which it would be fatal for the Democrats ignore is that it was not so much a Democratic victory as a rebuke for the Republicans."—Louisville Times. However, the Hartford Herald thinks it was a sure enough Democratic victory. Though the Times is doubtless a better judge.

It is now claimed by many Democratic papers that the cry against "Cannibalism" was merely indulged in by the Insurgents to make themselves solid with their constituents and that their was really not much in it. The same papers do not think Speaker Clark should be shown of his power. So the Insurgents may be soon crying down with "Clarkism."

That cartoon recently published in the Louisville Times, representing a voter firing a double barrel shotgun in the air on the 8th inst., bringing down a whole flock of cattle, hogs and sheep, is respectfully commended to the farmers of the country. This is actually what will happen if Democracy is placed in full power. Things will come down with a tumble and the farmer will be the most mutilated of all.

Points to Protection, Not to Free Trade.

The good prices received for farm products in the United States are cited as an argument in favor of Free Trade in Canada. Is this logical? If the United States had no Protection to industry it is quite improbable that the great centers of industry in which the farm products are bought would have been created. The process, therefore would not be good. Again, if there were no Protection to agriculture in the United States, the demand for farm products might be largely met from abroad. We certainly could increase the supply. In that case the price would go down. If the price paid for produce by our neighbors points in any direction it is to Protection and not to Free Trade.—Mullall Okla. State Journal.

Champ Clark's Tariff Program

(Washington Post)
Taking no account of the new leadership, Mr. Champ Clark proposes to go in at once and commit Democracy to Tariff for revenue only. That being the American definition of Free-Trade, the Republicans soon will have a chance to drown their troubles in laughter. The late unpleasantness will be as a sideshow compared with the Democratic shindy. Any fears Republicans may have as to 1912 will vanish immediately Mr. Clark introduces the bill he has in contemplation. The divided Republican ranks will close with a snap, and Mr. Clark will have done what the peacemakers found impracticable.

And what will the effect be on the Eastern Democracy, under the lead of Woodrow Wilson, John A. Dix, Simon Baldwin, and Eugene Foss? Could any of them have been elected last Tuesday on a Free-Trade platform? No; nor can the result in Missouri, Mr. Clark's own State, be returned into anything resembling an endorsement on the Tariff doctrine advocated in the recent campaign. Mr. Clark may have his Missouri party colleagues with him on the Tariff but he cannot avow that a majority of the voters of the State want low Tariff. Mr. Clark failed to keep the Southern Democrats solidly in line, in his assaults on the Payne-Aldrich bill, and Tariff for Protection is gaining recruits in that section every day.

And while Tariff for revenue only was striking as many snags in Congress as a steamboat on the Missouri River, the Republican counter proposition would be carried along on the resistless current of solid Republican and insurgent Democratic votes. All parties are calling for Tariff revision, but by what process of reasoning does Mr. Clark come to the conclusion that we should go back to the law of 1833, for a starting point? At that early period our products were practically wholly agricultural, and the Tariff law that was applicable to conditions then prevailing could but inadequately fill the bill now. The problem is a hundred times more complex to-day than in 1833, and is increasingly so. Besides the sliding scale Tariff, for such it was, did not prove to be a cure-all for Tariff evils, and was discarded.

Should the Tariff reformers, in place of digging up things long ago found to be unworkable, look ahead and frame a Tariff with a view to meeting conditions which are certain to rise in the near future, their efforts would bring more satisfying results both to people and party. However, if Mr. Clark is bent on a policy that can have no other result than Democratic disruption and Republican solidarity, the beneficiaries need not solicitously advise him in respect to his choice of a petard.

Important Tobacco Deal Closed

The Finance Committee of the A. S. of E. met in Hartford Tuesday and closed a deal with the American Tobacco Company for a one and a half million pounds of the Hartford pooled tobacco. The prices for the leaf and hogs runs from $9 to $6. For the trash $3. The delivery will begin at Hartford on December 1. Mr. Thomas Tanner will be the grader here for the A. S. of E. people and Mr. Turner Burns, of Owensboro will be the receiver for the tobacco company.

The Finance Committee now has a prospective buyer for the Cromwell pool, and hope to make a deal soon. Should the committee fail to make a deal, the poolers for Cromwell have the privilege of delivering at Hartford, Rochester, Morgantown or any other point occupied by the American Tobacco Co.

Talk of Moving the Shops.

It is rumored that the shops of the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis railway are to be moved from Cloverport to Irvington, the latter point being the junction of the main line and the Irvington branch.

Several thousand people assembled at Irvington Wednesday to be present at the public auction sale of 128 lots at that place by Messrs. Moorhead and Aker. All the lots were sold the auctioneers being Messrs. Chas. Payne of Owensboro and the well-known auctioneer, Ighheart, of Elizabethtown. The sale was made interesting by the giving away of a lot and two cash prizes, and music, which was furnished by a band.

Six acres of the tract were not sold, and it is said that the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis Railway company is negotiating for this tract with a view to removing its shops at Cloverport to Irvington. Owensboro Inquirer.

Lives Tinge of Romance.

Berger, Powers and Hooper, these three men were successful at the polls at the late election, and their lives have a tinge of the romantic.

Berger has long been admired for his work in Milwaukee. He represents high ideals and practical methods. He goes to Congress as the first Socialist in that body.

Caleb Powers' ambition, conceived while he lay in jail on the charge of murdering William Goebel, of Kentucky was realized when he was chosen to Congress in the Eleventh Governor-elect Hooper, of Tennessee, had a boyhood of great hardship. He was early left an orphan, and had to struggle the best he could to get an education. Forty years ago when he was a waif on the streets of Knoxville, he one day attracted the attention of Capt. Cooper of Newport Tenn. He was given an opportunity to prove his worth and before he was twenty-one years old he was graduated with honors from law school.

Ad-Talk.

What would you think of a salesman who reported for duty one day, lay off for two, worked a half day, went off for a week and so on without any regularity? Surely you would not expect good service from such a man. And yet some merchants hold advertising, which is simply a "salesman," up to great results when it is allowed to "work" very irregularly.

The fact that advertising costs money is proof of its value. Things without cost are usually worth only their price.
